We were vacationing from Montana. My husband Tim helped give CPR to Mr. Hall. We were there at the hospital getting Tim stitches when Mrs Hall came out to talk to the family of the little girl. It broke our hearts. Her love of her husband touched us deeply. Her love towards the family even deeper. My husband and I have struggled through the years to find peace with each other. After that Easter Sunday we love each other deeper. Our prayers and thoughts are with the Hall family especially at this Holiday Season. God Bless you all and God Bless Alan Hall.Sincerely Adriana Corino

I hope that he has changed some people's minds to be a better person and to be a little more caring. He is an example that can apply to everyone. If we could get people to think even some of the time like my father then this world would not only be a better place to live but also more enjoyable. Mr. Hall has given the sweet girl he assisted great hope for a full childhood, with all its struggles and triumphs, middle school insecurities and upheavals, a first love, a first heartbreak, a Homecoming, Prom, wedding, children, grandchildren, a full life with all of its richness and complexity. Everybody who met Mr. and Mrs. Hall thought "Wow! I just CLICKED with them!!" The thing is, everybody they met felt the same way due to the Halls' warmth, affection, and the compassion that governed their interactions with this world. As we navigate this loss, Mrs. Hall's continuing interface with the world will surely endure as warmly and compassionately and affectionately as it always has, but how deeply Mr. Hall's absence will be felt by so many of us who loved him and who love his wife and children.
