Paige Stover Hague

SEP 1, 1954 - DEC 17, 2015

Paige Stover Hague, of Brockton, Massachusetts and Dunedin, Florida, passed away on December 17, 2015 at Suncoast Hospice Care Center in Palm Harbor, Florida after a 3 month battle with cancer. She relocated to Dunedin soon after her diagnosis to spend her final days with her mother and in her home town.

Paige was born on September 1, 1954 in Fort Campbell, Kentucky and spent her formative years in Dunedin, Florida as a member of First Presbyterian Church. She became active in musical theatre in Dunedin and remained in theatre through much of her life. During her high school years her family moved to Atlanta which was involved in the Civil Rights era where she worked as a legislative aid in the Georgia State Capital. It was during this period that Paige decided on a career in law.

Paige then attended Emory University and graduated from Duke University where she received her degree in Political Science. She continued her education and graduated from Nova Southeastern University Law School and subsequently began her law career. Her love of books and the law brought her into legal publishing and eventually into the creation of her own company, Ictus Initiative of Boston, Massachusetts, which specialized in co-writing and publishing books, developing web sites, business consulting and other promotional activities.

Paige is survived by her husband Ted Hague, of Brockton, Ma, her mother Lois W Hager, her brother and sister-in-law, David C Stover and Linda Stover of Dunedin, FL and her stepdaughters Elizabeth M. Hague of Washington DC and Stephanie A. Hague of Providence, RI

A Memorial Service will be held at First Presbyterian Church, 455 Scotland St., Dunedin, Fl on December 30,2015 at 2:00 PM.

Memorial donations in Paige's memory can be made to Dana-Farber, Cancer Institute Pancreatic Research Fund, P.O. Box 849168, Boston, Massachusetts 02284.

Hi my name is Ralph Mentor and I worked with Paige for a short time in 2012 while she was working with Scott Weiss on 'Confusing the Enemy: The Cus D'amato Story'. She gave me an opportunity I never would've imagined way back then and too young at the time to truly appreciate the opportunity. But just off her given me a chance to work with her for that short time gave me insight in myself I never would've thought was possible at the time, especially after all this time. So sorry to hear about her passing a couple years back. Just wanted to show her love and appreciation for the time and space she made for me in 2012. Working with her was an eye-opening experience that I cherish to this day and always will. She had great patience and compassion for me and I truly appreciate it. Sorry to her family, friends, and anyone who knew her. Just wanted to leave a testament of how she impacted my life. Again, truly appreciative. With Love, Ralph Mentor

I knew Paige a very short time...but she was an amazing person. I work in the sports industry and a chance flight brought us together. I commute to Boston from Washington DC, and we would often bump into each other when we hadn't spoken in a few weeks when she was getting her coffee at Union station on the way to work. Great woman who always made me laugh. I'll always have my signed books with her little notes to me in them..My condolences Okie Woods

I knew Paige through the Brockton Symphony, and marveled at her blustery personality and charming graces. Ran into one another at a party where she handed me her business card ~ in the business of publishing books. My husband, Jack Yunits, former mayor of Brockton, was in the throes of writing his book. We met with Paige at her beautiful Boston office, where Paige began her meticulous guide-through the necessities of book publishing. She came up with the name "Urban Mayor," so excited that it hadn't been used before! We plowed forward with her expert hand, published his book, and were rewarded when Paige called to say that Jack had won a Bronze Medal Independent Publishers award! She had entered his book without our knowing, and off we went to New York City to receive his medal. Paige radiated originality ~ we adored her. So with distressed and crushed hearts we deliver this message of thanks to Paige for being her incredibly unique self. The randomness of her illness and subsequent death will forever be a sad mystery. Paige, you will be missed, terribly!! Thank you, thank you for being on this planet with us ~ you were extraordinary. Love, Lees and Jack Yunits

Paige, with her contagious laugh, made business FUN. Not only did she orchestrate some unbelievable press, and encourage me to write my book, manage book proposals, but it never seemed like work when working with her. She was a true pro. Her energy was contagious, and her advice and wisdom on point, (even if it was hard to hear. Ha). It is always great to work with someone you can call friend. I know she will be missed, and am so very sorry that this happened to such a treasure of a person. With great sympathy, Marsha Egan

I first met Paige around 2005 when I was looking for a way to jumpstart my new business. She was so different in her approach to PR, and she gave me advice on several levels that changed my direction. She told me that I needed to write a book and pushed me to do so. When I reluctantly agreed, she drove the process, and to this day, I admit, it would never have happened without her.

The thing I will always remember most about Paige was her incredible work ethic and her passion. She gave me my first break out of college and provided the same opportunity to many others. She helped so many of her clients achieve their dreams, publishing numerous award-winning books and building so many great brands from the bottom up. Her energy will be sorely missed, but her impact will not be forgotten.
