When I think of my sister, Licha, I remember the closeness we shared when I was young. She was someone I looked up to and felt deeply connected with. Life, as it does, put space and years between us, and we lost touch for a long time. Even so, the memories of her in my early life have never left me, and for that I'll always carry her with me. Though we hadn't spoken in many years, my heart is with her now. I choose to remember her with love, gratitude, and peace.
